

Abstract of the Disclosure

The flyable ball has a unitary spherically shaped body made from a resilient material, with the body having a center axis and a transverse center axis. The body further includes a radially outward extending ring or rim projecting from the body and 5 located below the transverse center axis for supplying centrifugal stabilization to the body when the ball is thrown into the air with a spin.

BH01\243197.2
ID\CR